OFFICE OF GOVERNOR ROY COOPER

Highlights of the Week

Helping Communities Recover from Hurricane Matthew

On Thursday, Gov. Cooper traveled to Fair Bluff to thank students and staff of Columbus Career and College Academy (CCCA) for their volunteerism during and after Hurricane Matthew. Amid the devastation from Matthew, CCCA acted as a Red Cross emergency shelter, taking in neighbors affected by the hurricane. The governor also visited residents at a housing complex that recently reopened after being severely damaged in Hurricane Matthew.

"Help can't come quick enough for those who have been left homeless from a hurricane," Cooper said. "The recovery process is long and we still have a lot more work to do. We need to get people back into their former homes or into new, safer homes."

6 Million Meals for Meals on Wheels

On Wednesday, Gov. Cooper and First Lady Kristin Cooper delivered the 6 millionth meal with the Meals on Wheels program in Winston-Salem. The governor and first lady met with Rosalie Young, a Meals on Wheels recipient, and talked with her about the importance of the program to seniors across North Carolina. Gov. Cooper also recognized the hard work of the many volunteers who fight hunger statewide.

"These volunteers knock on people's doors and they visit them and deliver nutrition," Gov. Cooper said. "But they offer kindness and friendship and companionship and deliver a message on behalf of this community that we care about you."

Protecting Our Drinking Water

On Thursday, Gov. Cooper vetoed House Bill 56, arguing that the legislation only symbolically addresses unregulated, emerging contaminants in North Carolina's drinking water. HB 56 does not provide resources to state agencies whose mission is to protect drinking water from illegal chemicals. The bill also unduly rolls back environmental protections regarding landfills, river basins and beaches.

"This cynical legislation fails to address the concerns of families in the Cape Fear region and does nothing to protect drinking water statewide going forward," said Gov. Cooper.

NC Joins U.S. Climate Alliance

This week, Gov. Cooper announced that North Carolina will join the U.S. Climate Alliance, a bipartisan coalition currently made of 15 states that are committed to reducing their share of U.S. greenhouse gas emissions.

"Clean air and a healthy environment are vital for a strong economy and a healthier future," Gov. Cooper said. "So much of North Carolina's economy relies on protecting our treasured natural resources, and I'm committed to maintaining the quality of their air we breathe for generations to come."

This is just the latest action taken by the Cooper Administration to help combat climate change. Gov. Cooper recently signed into law House Bill 589, Competitive Energy Solutions for North Carolina, which will roughly double North Carolina's solar generation over the next four years.

Wishing Livingstone College Students Well at Fall Convocation

On Friday, Gov. Cooper traveled to Salisbury to deliver a fall convocation address to students and faculty at Livingstone College, a historically black college. During his remarks, the governor encouraged students set intentions for the upcoming schoolyear and the years to follow.

"Living with purpose means something different for every person," Gov. Cooper said. "I'd like to share with you what living a life of purpose means to me, and then I'd like to challenge you to think about what it means to you."

Maria destroys homes, triggers flooding

Category 4 hurricane knocks out power all across Puerto Rico

BY JAMES K. HAMIL
Winston-Salem, N.C. — The magnitude 7.6 hurricane on the Caribbean Sea coast of Puerto Rico destroyed homes, knocked out power across the entire island and killed at least one person, according to reports from the U.S. National Hurricane Center.

Forecasters said Maria was the deadliest hurricane to hit Puerto Rico since 1928. The storm was expected to bring heavy rain and flooding to the island, with some areas receiving up to 100 inches of rain.

Local family awaits word on Maria's damage to home

Cooper honors Senior Services' Meals on Wheels as program hits milestone

BY JAMES K. HAMIL
Winston-Salem, N.C.

Gov. Roy Cooper, D-N.C., on Tuesday honored the 6 million-meals milestone of the Senior Services' Meals on Wheels program. The program has been providing meals to the elderly for many years.

The program has been a success, providing meals to thousands of elderly people. The governor praised the program's staff and donors for their commitment to the community.

The Governor's office is the site of the 6 million-meals milestone celebration.

Killers: Corbett at fault in death

Irish brother-in-law's wife, father-in-law respond to wrongful-death lawsuit

BY JAMES K. HAMIL
Winston-Salem, N.C.

The wife of a man who was killed in a shooting in Ireland is suing the Irish government for wrongful death. The lawsuit claims that the government was negligent in its handling of the case.

The lawsuit is the latest in a series of legal actions taken by the victim's family against the Irish government. The family claims that the government was responsible for the death of their loved one.

Gov. Cooper on #GrahamCassidy Health Care Legislation:

OFFICE OF GOVERNOR
ROY COOPER

The latest proposal to repeal the Affordable Care Act may be even worse than previous proposals: raising premiums, weakening protections for people with pre-existing conditions, and slashing over $1 billion from North Carolina's Medicaid program. North Carolina's middle-class families will be worse off if this passes.

Senate Republicans in Washington must work with Democrats to reach a bipartisan solution that expands health care coverage and makes it better.
